2020 Census Non-Response Risk to North Carolina

The US Census is vital to representation, funding, and future planning in North Carolina. The US Census Bureau is collecting 2020 Census responses through October 31, 2020. While the response rates in the triad counties are above 50%, they are lower in the mountain and coastal counties. Response rates are reported daily at 2020census.gov/response-rates.

Using reported estimates for census driven funding, we can estimate the at-risk funds due to nonresponse. Census stakeholders can use this information to assess the impact response rates have on funding in their county or congressional district and work to improve response with awareness efforts and calls to action.

Potential Annual Funding Loss Due to 2020 Census NonResponse Based on May 31, 2020 Response Rates

2020 Census field operations were suspended due to the COVID-19 pandemic, but North Carolina Area Census Offices reopened in late May. Census workers will begin visiting nonresponding households in August. While nonresponse rates do not reflect undercounts, the risk of undercounting the population is higher for areas with higher nonresponse rates.

Quickly completing your census form either online (my2020census.gov), by phone (844-330-2020), or by paper questionnaire decreases the need for a Census worker to visit your home and maintains social distancing.

The funding impact assessment is based on the following resources:

- May 31, 2020 Nonresponse Households calculated from the US Census Bureau's Response Rate Tracker
 - Estimated total households and average household size from the 2014-2018 American Community Survey (ACS), US Census Bureau
- Estimated per capita funding from Counting for Dollars 2020: The Role of the Decennial Census in the Geographic Distribution of Federal Funds, George Washington Institute for Public Policy and the North Carolina Office of State Budget and Management
